SPEAKING LAST NIGHT

Judge Holt, Entertained a Good Crowd Last Night.

Misses Alex and Dr. Broge Talk to a Sunday School at the City Hall.

There was speaking last night at the county court house and the city hall. The first was a Republican appointment and the second a Democratic one. The attendance was very large, but the speaking was unsatisfactory.

Judge Holt, of Frankfort, was the attraction for the Republicans, but previous to his appearance in the court house, he had been in the city hall.

There have been a number of good talks delivered by the speakers, but the one of the very best was the speech of Judge Holt. He is a practical politician and a good lawyer and a good speaker.

There were a number of good talks delivered by the speakers, but
the one of the very best was the speech of Judge Holt. He is a practical politician and a good
lawyer and a good speaker.

The Sun regrets it has to refer to the speaker's speech in a general way, but the absence of a stenographer reports and the desire to not make a synopsis compels this passing notice.
It is certain, however, that the speaker's coming to the city was a beneficial one and that the sound thing he said will bring forth good action on the part of the people.

The speakers at the city hall were Messrs. George H. Alexander, of Lexington, and John H. Broge, of Frankfort, the latter the candidate for treasurer on the Brown ticket.

Mr. Alexander introduced the gentleman, and though the gentleman both spoke briefly, their community was appreciated by their hearers. They defended the ticket they represent with pointed facts and each scored themselves "a winner." A part of Mr. Alexander's address was in German. The main part of it was in English and was confined to the election in Lexington and he gave what he said as one who knew and not as a lawyer.

Elder J. S. Sweeney, republican candidate for state auditor, a splendid speaker, will address the people tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the county court house. Go out to hear him.

PADUCAH, Oct. 7.—A ten knot boat, sent the waves building in short time. The weather is clear and brilliant and the prospects for a race in the big yacht race, which occurred today, are bright.

The race was between the Shamrock and the Columbia. The Shamrock was the favorite, but the Columbia was the challenger. The race was a close one, and the Shamrock was the winner.

CALLED MEETING.

Council to Meet Tonight in Called Session.

The city council meets tonight in called session. A bill of about $1000 from the Eureka Hose company, for the last year, will be taken up.

It is probable that the ordinance authorizing the necessary $1000 for the improvement of Caldwell street will be given first passage.

The mayor also desires the council to take the proper action in regard to the complaint from and her mayor and council have been on Paducah by making one of their last days "Paducah Day."

Mayor Lang leaves Monday for Lexington and Winchester, and will probably not return until Friday or Saturday. Judge Tully will receive his grand jury on Friday.

DAMAGE SUITS

Administrator of Randall Culver Asks for $20,000.

Mrs. Winfree Sues G. W. Robertson, the Ice Man—Value $1,000.

Mr. R. L. Culver, administrator of the estate of the late Randall Culver, whose long service to the city and Jefferson streets last March, and was thrown out on his head and fatal injury, this morning filed suit in the circuit court here against the Paducah Railway and Light company for $20,000 damages.

The facts in the case are as follows:
The accident occurred at the intersection of the streets, and while it was unfortunate for the gentleman, it could not be avoided, and is settling.

The deceased resided near Main and had only recently returned from Texas. He was sometimes called Square Culver, but is not the well-known Square Culver, of Marshall county.

Miss is the attorney in the case.
Mrs. Eva Winfree, wife of Eugene A. Winfree, this morning through her attorney, J. Wheeler, filed suit in the circuit court against G. W. Robertson & Co., for $1,000 damages.

Mrs. Winfree and her mother, Mrs.
Lund, were out driving a few days ago when they were struck by an ice wagon. It appears there were some heavy vehicles in the street and the ladies were driving to pass in between them. The ice wagon was behind and there was not room enough for one to pass. The ladies saw this and turned up. The ice wagon was moving so rapidly that the tongue went over the top of the platform, but Mrs. Winfree was painfully hurt by the shock as it struck the buggy and horses.

ELDER SWEENEY

the County Court House.

the county court house, Elder John S. Sweeney, of Harrison county, who is the republican nominee for auditor, will address the people in behalf of the party. Mr. Sweeney is an exceedingly fine talker and should have a large audience. He is one of the state's most noted and most respected citizens and has to his credit some of the best speeches made in the canvass.
The people of all political opinions

ENGLAND CALLS OUT RESERVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Gen. O'Keefe of New York, the Transvaal representative in this country, is in Washington and will confer today with the secretary of State. He is expected to ask the friendly offices of the United States in settling the differences between Great Britain and the Transvaal. He expresses the opinion that the differences between the two governments will not be settled by arbitration.

Despatches received in London from South Africa tend to confirm the belief that President Kruger will restrain any further movement by the Transvaal army from the border. It is a fairly decided opinion that the Transvaal will not be called out.

London, Oct. 7.—The queen, in a royal proclamation, today authorizes the calling out of the necessary British army reserves. Every army band will be called out today with full strength.
The queen is expected to make a formal review of the troops on October 17.

ALL BOSH.

Newspapers Trying to Work a Bluff on the People.

Marshall Collins has a dozen or fifteen notices to serve on colored men who registered at the last registration day and are supposed to be ex-convicts. The notices inform them that a motion will be made in the county court next Thursday to strike their names from the registration books. If the men are not ex-convicts, or have received a pardon, they can appear and prevent their names being removed.

The talk in some of the newspapers that warrants would be issued is all bosh. A man violates no law in registering. If he is not entitled to register, is not challenged, sworn or questioned, and is allowed to register, he has violated no law and nothing can be done except to strike his name from the books. No warrants have been issued and none will be.

FRANKLIN TESTIFIES.

The Case Will Last About a Week Longer.

Franklin was put on the stand at Frankfort this morning and his testimony was about half given in when court adjourned until Monday.

It is thought that the trial will last the greater part, if not all of next week. It has already been on trial over a week.

TIT FOR TAT.

When the Democratic committee is waived with examining the registration books, to find illegal voters, the Republicans will take a whirl at the same job. Without any effort to make the Republicans have already secured a number of illegal Democratic registrations and will either have them expunged from the books or stop them at the polls. The Republicans are not to be trifled by such folly, but will see the game of the Democrats and their own better ing and a proper way. Men who will illegally register will vote illegally no matter what party they belong to, and the Democrats should clean their own skirts before throwing mud upon others.

Little, but on my Selden's case, best do, cigar.

candidate for state auditor, a
people tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the
hear him.

Charge the casualty of the Louisville convention to me is what Mr. Goebel said in his speech here. The people have made and are making the charge and in November they will vote the account. Mr. Goebel told "change it to me" called for a setting day, though he didn't seem to think so at the time.

It was Tweed who said to the defeated people of New York "What are you going to do about it?" and they did "drop" it. It is the Goebels who said "How did you help yourself—we have the machinery and defeated with the counting in," but they are only talking, for the people will come to the state's prison before they are counted into office. The people are not the rats.

The Goebel papers have finished the run over the state that Senator Lindsay has registered in Frankfort as a Republican and that the net was the final to a deal between him and the Republicans by which he secured a seat in the legislature, etc. A lie of which, carried by the Goebels, is a sound money Democrat, the truth of the story will not be told by them, unless forced by the result compels them to do so. The fact is, it was Judge W. L. Lindsay, a well known and life long Republican and Republican, who registered as a Democrat.

People who read figures and don't say a thing are claiming that Tuesday's registration shows a clear victory for Goebel. Those who thus figure reckon only on the numbers and by their calculations and write themselves down as by their deductions. They would think for a moment that 50 per cent of the independent vote will vote for Taylor and Brown and that a goodly part of the Democratic vote will vote for Brown and not for Goebel, of this there is no doubt except in the minds of those who never think for themselves and vote as they think "like sheep." To point "he heard" to this opinion the registration and vote in Louisville in 1897—a year when conditions were very much like they are now—can be very much as an exhibit. In the case of the 1897 election in the Metropolitan West Democrats 14,579, Republicans 17,927, doubtful 7,239 total 41,745. That year the vote for Jefferson County, in which Louisville, which should have made a more advantageous showing because of the vote outside of the city, resulted as follows: McKinley, 29,107; Bryan, 16,707; Farmer 14,785; Levering 380. A repetition of his vote in ratio, in November is not at all unlikely, with the greater loss in the Goebel ticket in the same proportion.

GOEBEL AND CARLISLE.

Louisville Post: "At Versailles Mr. Goebel, in response to the accusations of treachery made by former political associates, said:
"When the Lexington convention met in June, 1896, I appeared there at the head of the Kentucky delegation, an untried candidate from the home county of Warren. I was practically for president, and I cast the vote of that county for Charles J. Brannan for chairman, the free silver candidate, and against Alexander P. Humphrey, the single gold standard candidate, and I cast that vote and my own for the platform that adopted, which declared for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and I abstained from the delegation to cast Kentucky's vote for John G. Carlisle, but for Joseph C. S. Blackburn."

THE KENTON COUNTY DELEGATION.

He certainly was not there by the assistance of Mr. Blackburn, for just the year before he had killed Blackburn's personal friend and political ally, because that friend was striving to secure Mr. Blackburn's re-election to the senate.

"Mr. Goebel had all the winter been trying to 'graduate' Mr. Blackburn, and had somewhat indicated his wrath of vengeance, but it did not seem possible that at that critical moment he was willing to keep Harvey Meyers and his delegation out of the convention, that Mr. Goebel could come in at the head of a Carlisle delegation.

"Goebel was there by the assistance of Mr. John H. Carlisle. With W. B. he had been in the past to Washington to seek Mr. Carlisle's assistance, and he had explained to Mr. Carlisle how he could most effectively and safely get into the convention, and in his determination to keep Harvey Meyers out.

"It was by this that Mr. Goebel got into the convention. He went there by the assistance of Mr. Carlisle's friends; he was there in the interest of Mr. Carlisle and of sound money.

"It was the critical period in the struggle between silver and gold. The Kentucky fight, by its influence direct and indirect, determined the complexion of the national convention. In Mr. Carlisle's delegation were Mr. Carlisle's friends. In his fight at home Mr. Goebel had the personal assistance of Mr. Carlisle's brother.

"After he was seated and all centers were passed, this Carlisle leader, the benighted Arnold of western politics, turned on the man who had put him in the convention, violated all his pledges, and tried to make himself solid with the dominant silver leaders.

"That is the story, the plain, unvarnished tale, every part of which can be substantiated by documentary evidence.

"The world hates a traitor. Those Democrats who are willing to reward Goebel's treachery have simply to consider that after all he voted only as Harvey Meyers and his delegation voted, have to consider that from his treachery the silver men derived no benefit whatever. All the unfruitful of this treachery went personally to Goebel. He was rewarded by being put on the central committee by Blackburn. He became by that treachery the leader of the Blackburn forces in the legislature. In betraying Carlisle he dragged the cause of sound money with him, and by its aid secured his through treachery to steal a fraudulent nomination.

"We ask the followers of Mr. Goebel, we ask the men he has named as his associates on the ticket, not to condone this treachery. A man received the price stipulated, but he never was able in England to hold up his head among the men who sought to benefit by his treachery.

"Goebel has received more than the worth of the service. He gave nothing. The Meyers would not have given without price. He was made a member of the central committee. He was allowed to debate to the Democratic caucus. He fastened on the party responsibility for his own sins, and when a serves his purpose he will betray Blackburn, Bryan and any associate with the same deliberate malice as that which distinguished his treachery to Carlisle.

"Mr. Bryan is coming to Kentucky to ask the Democrats to elect him his own governor. Let some sober man lay the record before the gentlemen from Nebraska and ask him if such a politician should be trusted with any commission from the Democratic party."

Taylor of the United States treasury said Monday that there is now fractional silver being distributed through the country at present than ever before, the amount per week averaging $400,000. He is constantly wiring the treasury officials at Washington to send more money, and it can be turned out of the mint as fast as needed.

"This is in striking contrast with the conditions during the panic of 1891," he said. "I was assistant treasurer then and remember very well how the silver stacked up in our vaults."
